

My commitment to you

I recognise that my success depends on looking after your best interests and treating you fairly and with respect at all times. Therefore, I commit to these notions.

What can I do for you?

I will look at the state of affairs first, then help you make the right decisions and assist with getting to a point where your home feels like a home again, where things have found a proper and permanent place.

I can help you with clearing the space or situation you wish to declutter, the scope of the operation is entirely up to you, of course. Most importantly, I'd be supporting you with making the tough choices about keeping and letting go.

I do understand that you may have trouble letting go of things. As a matter of fact this is one of the main reasons to call upon a decluttering professional. I'll be there to talk you through that process and you won't have to do it alone. I'm not afraid of digging in and giving you as much hands-on help as you need.

I will consider any information I come across during the process, or insight into your personal affairs, strictly confidential.

A clear mind in a clear space

I will help organise what remains in the space in a manner that makes sense to you, while at the same time being useful and practical.

I will propose avenues to make sure that the things you have let go find a new purpose (selling some of it, giving it to a charity that you feel close to, etc).